Plans Set in Motion For War Loan Drive

Fred H. Kraft Named Chairman For Ocean Beach and Nearby Communities.

Plans were set in motion here this week by Fred H. Kraft, war loan drive chairman for the Ocean Beach, Point Loma, Mission Beach and Pacific Beach communities, for the Fifth War Loan drive. He has been appointed to head this effort by Phillip Gildred, San Diego war finance chairman.

The campaign will open Monday, June 12 and run through Saturday, July 8. Quota set for the entire nation in this, the fifth drive of its kind, is $16,000,000,000 in war bonds and securities.

To Meet Huge War Costs

Individuals will be requested to subscribe $6,000,000,000, a record high individual quota, made necessary to meet war costs that are close to $8,000,000,000 a month. In order to place greater emphasis on subscriptions by individuals only sales of the war bonds to private persons will be reported during the period of June 12 to June 26 although subscriptions will be received from all non-banking investors throughout the campaign, according to the announcement the local chairman has received.

Chairman Kraft is lining up the sub-chairman this week. He has appointed Capt. Burritt Mills to direct the campaign for Ocean Beach community and is making appointments of the sub-chairmen for the other three communities.

Plans Mass Meeting

Kraft also is planning a mass meeting of all the employers and employees, date to be announced later, at which they will be given all the necessary information about the drive and will have the opportunity to enroll as members of the "Third Army."

The chairman also announces that plans are being made to give greater impetus to the campaign by the publication in the Ocean Beach News of a full page message to be underwritten by the local merchants. Plan is to publish this special page in the June 9 issue of The News.

One More Robber Confesses to Jobs Pulled Locally

Two more recent store robberies in Ocean Beach were cleared up this week, when on Monday, Mark Erickson, 31, maintenance department employe of a down town San Diego bank, pleaded guilty to burglarizing the Lownes stores here along with a couple of stores down town, L. G. Chauvaud, acting sergeant at the Ocean Beach police station, reported Thursday. Erickson confessed to one other burglary in Ocean Beach, identity of which was not on file in the local station.

At the Lownes store, Sergeant Chauvaud reported that $105.17 had been taken. Only the cash was taken and no merchandise was reported missing.

Sergeant Chauvaud said Thursday he believed that Erickson might have been involved in three other robberies here, but the latter insisted he was guilty of two only of the local thefts.

Erickson is an ex-convict, reports Chauvaud, and was found to have four convictions on his record. His connection with the robberries here and down town was cinched by the officers as result of thumbprints found on a rifled safe down town.

Erickson pleaded guilty to the burglaries in Judge A. F. Molina's municipal court and was remanded to the superior court for sentence, with bond fixed at $5,000.

INSKO GRANTED DEGREE

Myron C. Insko of 4565 Brighton ave., Ocean Beach was a member of the graduating class of 600 of Boston university's 71st annual commencement, held Monday at Boston. He was granted, in absentia, the degree of master of sacred theology by the School of Theology of that institution.

Gertrude Johnson, a graduate of Pt. Loma high school, has been elected representative-at-large of the freshman class at Redlands university, Redlands, Calif. She will represent the class at student body council meetings.

Kiwanians Hear Thrilling Account Of Air Battles

"How the War Looked to Us in New Guinea?" Capt. Robert H. Fuller, returned overseas pilot of a B-17 bomber, whose home is in northern California, was graphically told to the Ocean Beach Kiwanis club at the Tuesday evening meeting, held at Glenn's Drive-In, following a cafeteria style dinner. Capt. Fuller, who has been home only 34 days in the past three years of service in the army air corps, is a member of the Fifth air force of the army. His talk was one of the most thrilling the local Kiwanians have listened to.

Capt. Fuller is temporarily on duty in California in behalf of the current campaign of recruiting of WACs for the army air corps. He said the enlistment of more WACs for this branch of the service is more than ever necessary since the recruiting of young men as aviation cadets has been halted.

Tells of Bismark Sea Battle

Probably the most thrilling of his narratives of the battles with the Japs in the southwest Pacific was that of the air and naval battle of the Bismark sea.

Jap atrocities at Bataan, Capt. Fuller declared was no surprise to "we Americans who have been in combat with these barbarians, nor was it any surprise to the Australians, since they had specific knowledge of many Aussie prisoners who had been lined up and shot by the Japs."

Capt. Fuller reviewed the history of the rapid advance of the Japs in the early months of the war and time and again pointed out how lack of men and fighting equipment kept the Americans on the defensive so long.

"Skip" Bombing Effective

In the final stopping of the Japs, the great value of the fleet's air arm was demonstrated, he said. He also described changes of tactics in the operations of the Americans and how what he called "skip" bombing was found to be particularly effective in disposing of the Japs shipping and warships. In fact, he expressed the opinion that the "skip" bombing of Jap convoys was in large measure responsible for saving New Guinea to the Allies.

One result of the lack of men and fighting equipment was the necessity of putting into combat a good many members of the air force without sufficient training.

Praises Ground Crews

He praised the ground crews for their great work in the army air force and stated that these men in particular have had no chance to come home from the southwest Pacific. Only by recruiting more WACs for the air corps can we hope to provide early furloughs for these men, he said.

Tom Plant officiated as chairman of the program committee, introducing the speaker.

Visiting Kiwanians included Dr. Richard Barber of the San Diego club, Nathan Rannells of the La Jolla club and Frank F. Swan, a former member of the Gresham, Oregon club. Don Beckstedt was a guest of Dr. W. B. Oster and Gregory Fold a guest of Dan Moss.

Current community service project of the club is that of the Kiwanians providing rides to members of the armed forces. A week previous Dr. Oster urged the members to see how many rides they could give servicemen the past week. He called for a report on what had been done in this regard and found that 80 rides had been provided. His own contribution to this worthy effort amounted to 33 rides.

Bacon st. in front of Dr. M. R. Eby's office was the scene of fisticuffs about midnight Tuesday, with result that one serviceman struck by another fell against the office window, breaking the glass.

Special Memorial Day Service To Be Held Here Sunday

The Point Loma Methodist church will pay tribute to the men who sacrificed their lives in the World War No. 1 at an inspiring Memorial day service to be held Sunday, May 28 at 10:45 a.m. Also at the same service recognition and honor will be given to the men who are in the service of their country today. A special tribute will be given to Claude Muncey, MM 2/c, USN, who gave his life for his country at Pearl Harbor. A beautiful bronze plaque has been given to the church in memory of their son, Claude Muncey, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Jordan.

A special litany has been prepared in the dedication of two new flags given to the church; one, the American flag and the other the Christian flag. The following guest organizations have been invited to take part in this service:

The American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Navy Mothers and the Boy Scouts.

Rev. James F. Roberts, pastor, will preach on the subject: "The Blessings of Liberty". Special music will be given by the church choir. Everyone is cordially invited to attend, especially those who have loved ones in the service of our country.

Ocean Beach Boy Aids In Thrilling Rescue of Pilot

Robert Gosnell, 15, of 810 Cordova st., was in the limelight Thursday as result of his heroic work in helping rescue a navy fighter plane pilot whose plane crashed into the ocean about a half mile from shore off Sunset Cliffs Wednesday afternoon. Robert had seen the crash and rushed home to get his paddleboard. He helped two other rescuers get the pilot on to the paddleboard.

More than 300 persons watched the spectacular rescue which began when two navy swimming instructors saw the plane crash into the ocean. They jumped from their car, stripped off most of their clothing, and dived into the surf, swimming toward the pilot, who could be seen struggling in the water.

The pilot had escaped from his burning plane before it sank, and bruised and suffering shock, he was held afloat by the two swimmers until Robert arrived with a paddleboard.

With Robert and the two instructors pushing, the paddleboard was eased toward the surf line, but high breakers prevented them from reaching the shore. About that time two city lifeguards, R. S. Grady and F. H. Crowther, also reached the scene on paddleboards.

Crowther said they had been there only a few seconds when a navy plane raced by overhead and dropped a flare to mark the spot. A following plane, a Catalin PBY, dropped a liferaft into which the pilot was hoisted by his rescuers.

A few minutes later a coast guard crash boat reached the scene and took the pilot and two navy men aboard.

Local V.F.W. Will Assist Sunday In Memorial Services

Bert V. A. Allen post, Ocean Beach V. F. W. and auxiliary are to have a prominent part in V. F. W. memorial sevrices to be held Sunday, May 28, at 9:30 a.m. at Lane ball park in the city. Mrs. A. McConnell, president of the V. F. W. San Diego county council, will lead the women's color guard and her husband, who is a committeeman of the county council, will read Gen. John A. Logan's famous "Order No. 11," establishing memorial day. Fred Woodward of Ocean Beach, who is first district president of the V. F. W., will be in charge of the program. Among others from Ocean Beach expected to attend the services are Mrs. Woodward; Mrs. Mary Webster, president of the local post auxiliary, and E. L. Sarrie, commander of the post. A goodly number of the other members of the Ocean Beach post expect to attend the services.

Address of the day will be delivered by Post Commander Harry C. Clark, and Lt. Edward J. Neron, U.S.N., retired, will be master of ceremonies.

A feature of the service will be the participation by members of families who have lost dear ones in the present war. Committeeman McConnell announces that if they so desire they may place flowers on the shrine. "In order that the sergeant-at-arms may have the names of those to be represented, it is desired that the names be sent to the Memorial Services committee, 524 F st., San Diego," he says. "The honor roll will be called during the service, at which time the relatives will step forward and place the floral offering on the shrine. The public is cordially invited to attend."

Arrives in Solomons

R. L. POWELL, CM 1/C

R. L. Powell, carpenter's mate, first class, of 4755 Niagara ave., writes his wife here that he has arrived safely at his destinations in the Solomon islands. He is a member of the Seabees, naval construction group, and has been with them since October 1943. Previously he was employed here for four years by the Haddock Engineers, and helped to prepare the building site of the Consolidated Parts plant.

Auxiliary of Legion Receives Reports On Past Year Activities

Ladies auxiliary of Clyde Wright post, No. 433, of the American Legion heard reports for the past year at the May meeting, held Thursday afternoon last week at the patio of the Neujahr home, with Mrs. Anna Neujahr as hostess.

Mrs. Myrtle Orrick, auxiliary president, reported in that capacity on the activities of the unit the past year, a feature of which was the announcement of the national and department citations that this unit had won during the year. She also reported as chairman of the committees on child welfare, community service and publicity.

Mrs. Katherine Rigg reported on the year's work of her committee on war activities, Mrs. Eudavilla Wright on that of the committee on rehabilitation, Miss Doris Orrick as secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Neujahr as chairman of the membership committee. Mrs. Neujahr stated that the unit had enrolled two more than its quota of new members during the year.

Election of officers will be held at the June meeting.

Several Business Houses Report Plan To Close Tuesday

A survey by the Ocean Beach News of plans for Memorial day here reveals that though no formal program is as yet decided for Tuesday, the postoffice and the bank and other places of business report that they will be closed during the day.

Supt. Harold K. Rankin of the local postoffice station announces that Tuesday will be observed the same as usual for Sundays. The postoffice windows will not be open nor will the carriers make their routes. Special delivery mail, however, will be handled and the usual Sunday pick up of mail from the outside boxes will be made.

Regarding the stores, the survey reveals that the matter of closing is left here to each of the business men to decide for themselves whether they close or remain open on Memorial day. Of those reporting their intentions to the News, Joe Lownes says his stores will be closed as has been his custom in previous years. Safeways announces in their ad that they will close Tuesday. Ocean Beach Furniture, Elm's Bootery, both bakeries, Dan Moss and Helen's gift shop say they will close. Other stores reporting said Thursday they were not yet sure of their plans and others said they would not know until Saturday night what action they will take on the matter.

Ocean Beach Man Revived After Try At Hanging Self

When Albert Blackwell, 50, of Long Branch ave., who has a record of numerous arrests for being drunk, was again taken care of by local officers about 10 days ago, he said he was going to hang himself, and after being remanded to jail down town he did try to hang himself, reports L. G. Chauvaud, acting sergeant of the local police station. Officers found him unconscious and after long effort were able to revive him.

Again Tuesday this week, the local officers found it necessary to take Blackwell to jail to sober up, and this time when arrested he told the officers, "I hung myself once in your jail and am drunk enough to try it again reports Chauvaud. This time, however, Blackwell did not carry out his announced plan of trying the hanging stunt again.

Find Purse with $576

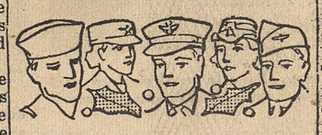

Officers J. C. Freeman and W. L. Wilson recovered a purse containing $576, which they had found in the weeds about 100 feet from Garnet and Ocean ave. in Pacific Beach after there arresting Dora S. Johnson, 52, of Pacific Beach, on a charge of being drunk. She complained then that she had lost her purse with about $500 in it. The money was returned to her after she had sobered up, Chauvaud reports.

MRS. NEILL SELLS HOME

Mrs. Frances Neill recently sold her home at 4642 Santa Cruz ave. to Lt. and Mrs. L. H. Harvill, formerly of Dallas, Texas, where Lt. Harvill was associated with a group of that city's leading physicians. He is now serving in the Southern Pacific. Mrs. Harvill will occupy the home here with her mother, Mrs. Hobson. Both ladies will be a welcome addition to the community.

Council Calls Conference On Recreation Site

Civic leaders in Ocean Beach are being invited this week by the San Diego city council to a conference with the councilmen to be held in the city council chambers Tuesday, June 6, at which there is planned a thorough discussion of the city's plans for a juvenile recreation area here centered about a building project for which the city already has promised to expend at least $8,000.

The council decided on the conference after receiving a letter from the Ocean Beach chamber of commerce, written May 19 and worded as follows:

"Ocean Beach chamber of commerce wishes to take this opportunity of thanking you for releasing the building at the foot of Santa Monica ave. to be used as a recreation project for this community. To date, however, the only facilities are one pool table and the basketball court. Any other facilities available would be greatly appreciated by the children of this community."

Principal question to be threshed out at the June hearing is whether to go ahead with plans for a permanent center on the city-owned property at the foot of Newport ave., using funds offered by the government under the Lanham act, or to seek some other central location in or near the Newport ave. business district.

The old merry-go-round building, which the city has re-leased as result of chamber of commerce activity here in order that the youth may at least temporarily have a place to meet and play, was re-opened last week.

New Building For Cleaners and Laundry Announced Here

Another new business structure for Ocean Beach was announced this week by Mrs. M. A. Macklin, manager of Cabrillo Cleaners & Laundry Inc. The owners are hoping to start construction in the next 30 days, she said Thursday.

Site will be on Cable st. near Newport on property that has been owned by the firm for several years. The building probably will be a two-story, with apartments on the second floor, she said, with a modern drive-in arrangement as a part of the plans. Work on the plans has been going on for the past two months.

Because of the new construction contemplated, the firm has arranged for new temporary quarters at 1869 Cable at the corner of Newport. Mrs. Macklin announces that the store next to the postoffice will be closed and the new location will be announced soon. Both stores, she says, will be combined in one modern building. She wishes to thank all her customers for their past patronage and "trusts we shall have the pleasure of continuing to serve them in the new temporary location until the company is able to complete the new building that is planned."

OCEAN BEACH REPRESENTED AT MEETING OF 5 C's

Allies Hammer at Gustav Line; Japs Continue Advance in China; Delay Induction of Men Over 30

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

China—Allies fight to open back door to China in southwestern part of country as depicted by 1 and 2, Japs seized control of Peiping-Hankow railroad in drives shown by 3 and 4.

ASIA:
Chinese Set Back

Gallant China's defenders took one more step back in the eastern belt of their country as 80,000 Japanese supported by strong reinforcements drove beyond the Peiping-Hankow railroad, upon which they tightened their hold.

As the Chinese fell back, Lieut.-Gen. Joseph Stilwell's mixed U. S. and Chinese troops hacked their way forward in north Burma, far to the southwest of the main Chinese battleground. Purpose of General Stilwell's offensive was to clear the Ledo road, over which supplies could be trucked into sorely pressed China from the southwestern corner of the country.

By grasping the Peiping-Hankow railroad, the Japs consolidated their positions in eastern China, which extend inland from the sea coast. It is in this rich region that the cagey enemy has established heavy industry to utilize the country's abundant manpower and natural resources.

Near Inner Lines

As U. S. army and navy forces drew closer to the Philippines and Indies within the Japs' inner defensive ring, Yankee airmen continued to hammer at the enemy's tottering outer fortifications guarding these prized conquests.

To the west of Hollandia, army fliers pounded at Jap installations near the tip of New Guinea, forming one side of the gate to the Indies, and drew stiff fire from some of the planes the enemy has supposedly concentrated in the region.

To the north, both army and navy fliers collaborated in blasting at Jap installations in the Caroline islands, the front door to the Philippines, with the big base of Truk being an especial target.

OIL:
Big Strike

Mississippi's little village of Heidelberg in the southeast corner of the state, became the mecca for the nation's sharpest oil men with the development of two high producing wells in the region and giddy anticipations that it might blossom into another East Texas field, which has given up almost two billion barrels in 16 years.

As oil men rushed to be in on the kill, the region's poor, struggling farmers who have eked the barest living from the stingy soil, suddenly visioned manna from heaven. Besides receiving fancy sums for leasing their land, they would get a royalty of one-eighth on production. Already, a Negro reportedly obtained $17,500 in royalties alone.

First probed by the Gulf Refining company in 1940, the Heidelberg field has two heavy producing wells, both reportedly capable of producing 15,000 barrels daily.

Diamond in the Rough

Twelve years ago a boy named William Jones was playing horseshoes with his father on a farm near Peterstown, W. Va. One pitch dug into the earth and uncovered a large bright stone. "Gee, I found a diamond!" exclaimed the youth.

Afraid of ridicule, however, he did not submit it to experts until recently. Then, R. J. Holden, professor of geology at Virginia Polytechnical institute, reported that the stone is the largest alluvial diamond ever found in the United States.

EUROPE:
First Blow

Taking the first crack at Hitler's Fortress Europe in the expected three-headed offensive from the west, south and east, the U. S. and British armies in Italy launched a powerful drive against German Gustav line below Anzio.

In the west, Allied bombers poured thousands of tons of explosives on the Nazis' rail network in France, Belgium and Germany, over which anti-invasion Comdr. Erwin Rommel must shuttle troops and supplies to meet the assault against his coastal defense. In Russia, the Reds reportedly moved troops up in line for a big offensive to coincide with western operations.

Under command of Britain's Gen. Harold Alexander, the Allied push in Italy up the broad valleys leading to Rome got underway after a thunderous artillery bombardment, while the Nazis tried to neutralize other Allied forces massed on the Anzio beachhead in their rear to the northwest.

U. S. VS. WARD'S:
Nothing Settled

Although government troops marched in and out of Montgomery Ward & Company's Chicago plant arousing the nation to a pitch over the dramatic course of events, nothing, it seemed, had been settled.

An election had been held to determine the CIO United Mail Order, Warehouse and Retail Employees' union right to bargain collectively for the company workers, but Ward's had never objected to such an election and stood ready, as previously, to negotiate with the union.

Left unsettled, however, was Ward's objection to extension of the maintenance of membership contract with the union, which provides that its members must remain in good standing for the life of the agreement.

DRAFT:
30-37 Spared

Confident of meeting the services' demands for manpower out of the pool of younger men unless unexpectedly high battle casualties are suffered, draft officials gave a new lease on civilian life to men from 30 to 37 years of age by indefinitely deferring them if engaged in essential occupations.

At the same time, it was ruled that men in the 26 to 29 year age group were to be eligible for six-month deferments if found to be necessary and regularly employed in an essential occupation. Deferments in the 18 to 25 year age group will continue to be confined to strictly key-men.

In indefinitely deferring men in the 30 to 37 group in essential work, local boards were advised not only to go by the War Manpower commission's list of necessary jobs, but to make determinations of their own.

'EYE BANK':
Store Corneas

For use of attempted restoration of sight in persons blinded by explosions, burns and ulcers, an "eye bank" has been established at the New York hospital for storing corneas, the transparent part of the coat of the eyeball.

Corneas will be collected either from living persons or from those arranging for their removal after death, in which case they have to be obtained within four hours of the individual's expiration.

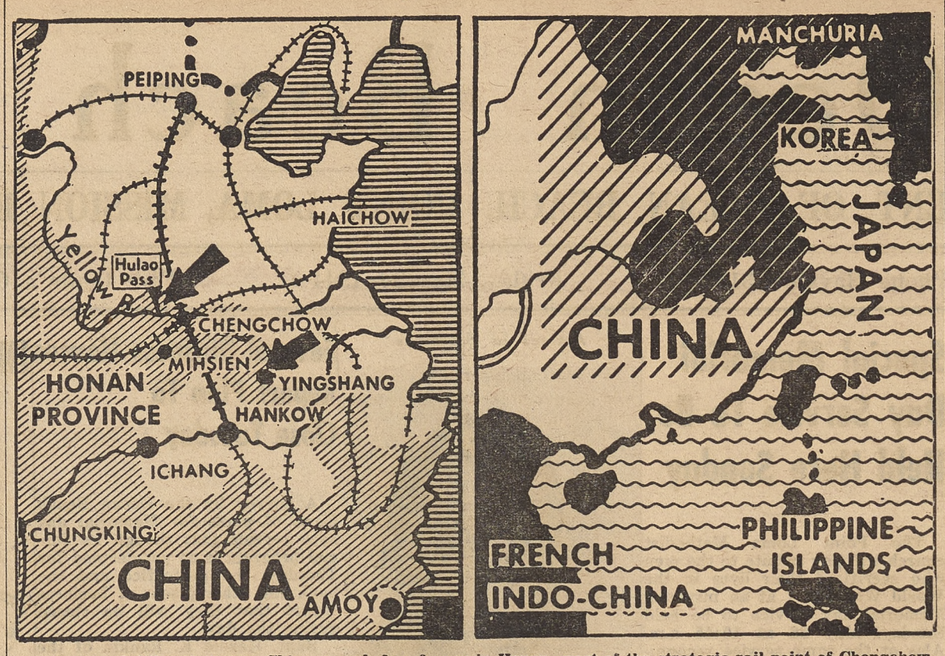

Cornea transplants are effective in restoring eyesight in 20 out of 100 cases of blindness, it is reported.

PERSONALITY

New secretary of the navy is 52-year-old James Forrestal, New York investment banker, who served as undersecretary to the late department chief, Frank Knox. He is a veteran of World War I.

Chinese and Jap Forces Fight for Pass

Savage fighting between Chinese and Jap forces in Honan, west of the strategic rail point of Chengchow, now centers on Hulao Pass, which the enemy is reported as rapidly fortifying, following its capture, to prevent counter-attacks. Arrows in the map indicate centers of fighting outside Mihsien, where the Chinese have circled the enemy, and Yingshang where the Japs have been more successful. Diagonal lines in map at right indicate the general zone of action in relation to China.

Hot water bottles, bath mats, ice bags, etc., can now be fashioned from flexible plastics. Due to their resistance to soap, oils and water, it is believed they will outwear their rubber equivalents.

Wasted Cabbage

Last year Americans wasted more than 380,000,000 pounds of cabbage by throwing away the core and outer leaves! At least one-half of this waste was of edible food. How about checking up on your habits in this respect?

Industrial Health

We think of this industrial health program as rather recent, but the foundations were actually laid as long ago as the 17th century by Bernardino Ramazzini, an Italian physician, who probably was the founder of industrial hygiene. Although living in an age which was far from outstanding in cleanliness, Ramazzini took the very modern viewpoint that clean hands, clean bodies, clean clothes, and clean working conditions are essential factors in good health, and he devoted a long life to working and writing for a better understanding of his convictions.

MEMORIAL DAY QUESTIONS FOR AMERICANS

On this Memorial day of 1944, to be observed the coming Tuesday, there will be questions asked of we Americans at home, asked by those of our sons and brothers who are in the armed forces, and particularly by those fighting abroad. The one question more than any other that they will be asking of us Tuesday is "What Did We Do For Freedom Today?"

These men, who are doing the fighting and the dying, or who are preparing to fight and, if need be, to die, have a very distinct right to ask that question.

They say that we should be, in a sense, in this all-out fight for the American way of life as much as they. In the poetic words of R. L. Nicholson, from "Belle Media" of the Baton Rouge Engineers Depot, they are asking:

"Did you buy a bond or a stamp today?
Or collect any scrap for the pile?
Did you save your grease or throw it away?
Did you drive just an extra mile?
Have you been down to the Red Cross bank
And given a pint of your blood?
Did you send that V-Mail letter today?
Did you hoard any rationed food?
Before you begin to complain and gripe
That life is all work and no fun—
Would you trade your dinner for ration K?
Or your overtime pay for a gun?
Just stop every once in a while today
When your lot seems hard and lean
And think of a gob and a leatherneck
And nine boys in a B-17."

MARINES ON THE JOB

Record of the Marines at Camp Pendleton on preservation of historic sites within the area is another evidence that military installation doesn't necessarily mean the removal or destruction of things civilian. To the great credit of Maj. Gen. Joseph C. Fegan, who until his transfer to the command of the marine department of the Pacific, with headquarters at San Francisco, and who was the commandant previously at Camp Pendleton, be it said that under his foresight and direction the famous old Rancho Santa Margarita home has been restored and evidently will be kept for posterity as a show place.

The editors of San Diego county and their wives remember their May meeting, held Sunday at Camp Pendleton by courtesy of the commandant, particularly for their delightful visit to the Rancho home, which originally built in 1828, has been restored by the Marines and is being carefully preserved. The numerous rooms are being kept immaculate, likewise the grounds.

So we salute the Marines for their splendid post-war policy for what they have done at Camp Pendleton, the largest military establishment in our nation.

Annual Poppy Day Campaign Set For Friday, Saturday

The 1944 poppy sale of the American Legion auxiliary on behalf of the wounded veterans of both wars, will be conducted Friday and Saturday, May 26 and 27, states Mrs. Myrtle Orrick, poppy chairman and president of the Ocean Beach unit 433.

"This will be the biggest sale in the history of the auxiliary during the last 24 years," she says.

"Our poppies are hand made of paper in replica of the poppies that grew on Flanders' field and are made by disabled veterans with material furnished free by the auxiliary in more than 50 hospitals.

"I wish every one could see what help this poppy money brings to the hospitalized veterans and their families, also children left fatherless are a first concern of the auxiliary, she says.

"The veterans who make the poppies receive their pay first. Then 40 percent goes to the department and the rest used in our own community by the Unit. At present three children are being cared for by the Ocean Beach unit, with department assistance."

Bertha Shaffer is the committee head in Ocean Beach and is assisted by Teresa Hollens, Katherine Rigg, and Anna May Hyatt, Myrtle Orrick, Anna Neujahr and Eudavilla Wright will be workers at large.

The local unit ordered 3,000 poppies from the disabled men and hope to sell all of them.

V.F.W. Aims To Sell Millions

This Friday and Saturday some 3,600 posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., throughout the nation also will be busy with the 1944 buddy poppy sales which is conducted annually during the week-end prior to Memorial day, reports A. McConnell of Ocean Beach, committeeman of the San Diego county V.F.W. council.

"The proceeds are used exclusively to maintain welfare activities in behalf of disabled and needy ex-servicemen and their dependents," he says.

"Since 1926, one penny for each buddy poppy sold to the public has been diverted to the maintenance of the V.F.W. national home, at Eaton Rapids, Mich. Nearly 100 young men now in the armed forces were reared at the V.F.W. national home, where they were trained in the ideals of patriotism which their fathers professed before them.

This year the organization has set as its goal the sale of 12 million buddy poppies.

DISTRICT No. 7
Bayview 6101

Our "Block Plan" received more publicity Sunday. It has been brought out constantly that this plan must continue as the need for a well-organized group, such as our women here are, is still present and very important.

Many women who do not sew (lap robes, slippers, etc.) have asked "What can we do?". Well, here's a little hint. Why not get a little gift; a package of cigarets, some chewing gum, piece of soap, tooth brush, comb. wash cloth or some small inexpensive article, wrap it as for a gift, send or turn it in to Mrs. Miller, 4645 Saratoga ave., or Mrs. Leadbeater, 4428 Coronado ave. These gifts will be given to the hospital for the boys as morale builders. It is surprising the joy and enlightenment these small gifts bring to those confined there, sometimes even giving their memory a jog helping to speed their recovery. Also, we could use a number of late magazines, particularly the small type ones with concise and interesting reading matter, such as the Reader's Digest, Coronet, etc., even the little comic magazines are received with great enthusiasm.

Regarding the paper salvage drive, the pick-up date for our district (Postal Zone No. 7) is on Monday, May 29. Paper should be bundled, tied and placed on the curb in front of the house on the pick-up day, May 29.

The Red Cross In Ocean Beach

By ONA E. PITCOCK

Ocean Beach women, on Mother's day, baked 95 dozen cookies and a birthday box. The cookies served 500 men, Miss Nye reports, and a 19-year old boy received the birthday box. You can hardly realize what these cookies mean to our men folks who have been on foreign shores. It is a touch of home and a reminder that they are never forgotten.

An out-door craft class will be opened in the park on Wednesday and Miss Nye asks if she might send our cookies there this week as the Red Cross women will serve servicemen refreshments on their opening day. I told our ladies about it and everyone of them offered to bake cookies again this week.

Mrs. Mae Heidbrink has sold her home and expects to go east about July 1. What will we do without her? On Mother's day her ladies sent in more than 50 dozen cookies. Besides her Mission Beach ladies, who do sewing and knitting, she has many ladies here in Ocean Beach who help the Red Cross center through her.

Here is a letter received from Vincent Desmond who received the angel food cake on his 23rd birthday:

Dear Mrs. Pitcock;

"I want to thank you and the ladies who made such a nice birthday for me. It was the prettiest birthday cake I have ever seen. Paul and my brother (the other Marines here) helped me cut it and we surely enjoyed it. All the cakes and cookies you make out there are very good. I also thank you very much for the game of monopoly. Am sure we will enjoy it very much."

Thank all the ladies for me.

Vincent.

We feel sure little Mary Elizabeth Andeen had a nice time on her first birthday anniversary. The ladies working through the Red Cross center gave her a wooly dog made of sheep skin, and sent several greeting cards.

Has any one an old electric iron they will donate to camp and hospital? Red Cross will repair it if it needs to be repaired but irons are sorely needed, as are custard cups, metal salt shakers, cold cream jars, clothes hangers with the rod to hang pants on and especially traveling bags, suit cases or grips of any kind. No matter what condition the suit cases are in Red Cross will mend them. This is an urgent call.

"To furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of armies, and to act in matters of voluntary relief and in accord with the military and naval authorities as a medium of communications between the people of the United States and their army and navy, is a part of the charter of the Red Cross. This applies to you because you are the Red Cross."

MEMORIAL DAY 1944

A PROGRAM FOR PEACE

It is fitting and proper that one day a year be set aside to honor those brave men and women who have given their lives for their country.

This year, however, we feel the urge to do more than the usual flag waving and speech making. As thinking citizens, we believe that wars can be prevented. We see no logic or reason why thousands of our finest citizens must be called upon every generation to pay with their lives for the selfishness, greed, and blunders of a few stupid men in high places. History teaches that it requires far greater statesmanship to prevent wars than to fight them.

Proud are we, to be citizens of this great country. We would not be worthy of this citizenship if we did not raise our voices on this Memorial Day to insist that our leaders not only continue to bend every effort to bring this present war to a successful conclusion but TO PLAN NOW FOR A JUST AND LASTING PEACE.

We believe the peace to come, to be a just and permanent one, must provide for the following:

1. The political framework of a continuing collaboration of the United Nations and eventually of neutral and enemy countries.
2. Provision for bringing within the scope of international agreement economic and financial acts which have widespread international repercussions.
3. Provision for an organization to adapt the treaty structure of the world to changing underlying conditions.
4. Proclaim the goal of autonomy for subject peoples and establish an international organization to assure and to supervise the realization of that end.
5. Establish procedures for controlling military establishments everywhere.
6. Establish in principle and seek to achieve in practice the right of individuals everywhere to religious and intellectual liberty which includes freedom of the press.

A program along the lines outlined above will be achieved when statesmen bend their efforts towards its accomplishment. As a memorial to the soldier dead of this community therefore and as a tribute to those brave men and women now in our armed forces, we the firms and individuals listed below devote this space as a contribution towards helping to bring about a JUST and LASTING PEACE.

PRIVATE ENTERPRISE DOES A REAL JOB

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON, provides an excellent illustration of the difference between government and private enterprise housing methods. In Spokane private enterprise built 2,300 homes to care for the needs of the influx of war workers. That was all for which private enterprise could secure priorities on materials. Those 2,300 homes had individuality, were all attractively designed, well built structures. They were fitted complete with basement heating plants, refrigeration and all modern conveniences. Each house was built on a separate lot, the grounds were attractively landscaped. There are cement walks, sewer connections, all complete in every way.

The government built 2,500 homes, solid blocks of them with no space between. Each house had four rooms. There were no foundations, no basements, no heating plants of any kind, no conveniences, no walks or any landscaping. The houses are of the flimziest possible construction with single wall board partitions and tar roofing paper roofs.

The private enterprise built homes have been sold on monthly payments and these monthly payments are no more for the five and six room houses than the rent charged by the government for its four room shacks. Private enterprise made a profit on its venture and added materially to the future of Spokane. All of the 2,300 homes have been sold but only a small percentage of the government houses have been occupied. It illustrates the difference between the effectiveness of private enterprise and government in business.

GROCER HAS TROUBLE FOLLOWING REGULATIONS

LAWRENCE SULLIVAN IN his new book, "Bureaucracy Runs Amuck," published by Bobbs-Merrill, tells a graphic story of the trials and tribulations of the merchants of today, operating under the thumb of bureaucratic Washington. The following paragraph tells a bit of what is the matter with the grocers:

"Grocers, perhaps, have been harder hit by conflicting and overlapping OPA orders than any other retail group. When OPA began there were roundly 575,000 food outlets in the United States. Today those stores, still in business, are governed by 29 maximum price regulations, 63 other price controls applicable at the processor, wholesaler or jobber level, plus 10 general ration orders governing food products. All of these regulations are subject to amendment from day to day. The general maximum price regulation, for example, was amended 160 times in 13 months, and there were 15 supplementary orders issued under it. The average retailer is simply unable to read and digest this mass of material governing his daily operations."

That paragraph tells only a small part of the troubles of the grocer. Certainly his life is a hard one. We, the consumers, think we are abused, and are, but we should have a bit of pity for the grocer laboring under his greater trials. And it gets no better, fast.

TIME AND SUPREME COURT

AT THE TIME the appointments were made there was far less opposition on the part of the senate and the press to the naming for the supreme bench of Justice Frankfurter than was accorded the appointments of Justice Black and Justice Murphy. Now the press and many of the senators are supporting the opposition of Justices Black and Murphy to the expressed ideas and judicial attitude of Justice Frankfurter. How quickly conditions and ideas, on which public opinion is based, can change in these fast-moving days.

AT A SPECIAL SESSION of its legislature the state laws were changed to permit California to send Uncle Sam a tax bill on his vast holdings of real estate in the state. That will be giving the old gentleman a taste of his own medicine, but he must express his willingness to take it. Other states might solve some of their tax problems the same way and possibly cause the government to let loose of some of its unneeded land.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED to the German royal family? No one of them gets so much as a two line item in the newspapers. Such is the difference between being notorious or being famous.

THE OLD ESTABLISHED weather lore of the East does not work in the rainy winter season in California. A cloudless sunset does not mean a clear day tomorrow. Starting before seven does not mean quitting before eleven. A bit of blue sky large enough to make a pair of sailor pants does not mean clearing skies. A rainbow is not a promise rain will stop. All signs fail in wet weather.

Specialists in Guerilla Tactics Practice Bloodless Raids in Preparation for Big Battle to Come.

"Halt—who's there?"

This sentence, barked out in one startled exhalation, stopped the stealthy form which had suddenly materialized out of the shadow of a plane. His dark wet suit stuck to his lithe form. His hands went up as the sentry's bayonet stopped just short of his midriff. There was no moon. The two figures, hardly visible to each other in the black, froze for a second as the sentry's nervous trigger-finger grew a little more steady. He called the guard.

There was the crescendo scuff-scuff-scuff of hurrying feet and a moment later, the sentry was patrolling the airdrome again very much on the alert. . . .

"For the fifth time, I ask you where you came from," the angry colonel demanded. For the fifth time came the same answer from the prisoner in the wet jungle suit.

"Private, first class, James O'Fallon, Serial No. 3030496."

"Take him away," said the colonel finally, "he can stay in the guardhouse for the duration."

The guards hustled No. 3030496 off to the hoosegow where he stumbled over an assortment of "AWOLS" and other bleary-eyed offenders. He saw three other men lying peacefully on the floor arrayed like him. But no sign of recognition on their blackened faces.

Bloodless Raid

Private first class O'Fallon and his four comrades (although the colonel didn't know it at the time) were the only men captured out of a raiding party of 40. The rest had slipped catlike over the whole airbase, chalked their initials on planes, sketched the location of the radio room, noted the position of the antiaircraft guns, estimated the size of the garrison, checked each rock and sandbar in the shallows through which they had crawled before they reached the beach.

Of course, this was only a practice raid like dozens of others, the preparation for which I have witnessed. But real bullets had twice that night whistled out over shadows and set the big grey Snauzers yipping and the flashlight stabbing into the black sky above the base.

The unwritten story of these specialists will all come out some day. The Japs did this kind of thing at the beginning of the war and we thought it incredible. The British did it later with their brilliant "commandos."

The old name for it is guerilla warfare . . . fighting behind the lines, or in the more official language of an article by Douglas Smith in that trenchant military publication, the Cavalry Journal, "a phase in trained armed warfare that concentrates on destruction (the raiders destroy, the scouts merely get information) of enemy personnel and equipment in the enemy's own territory."

Back in the French and Indian wars, the ancestors of Douglas Smith began learning these tricks; Captain Smith, an American citizen and later of the French foreign legion, has put on paper some of the principles he has adduced from his own experiences in World War II.

Excellent Results

"The usual method of attacking an airdrome," says Captain Smith in recounting one of his experiences with the guerillas composed of British and French in Libya, "was for the men to leave their cars (the rubber boat of the desert) and go on foot up to the airdrome at night. When possible, they passed the sentries without detection and put their bombs on the airplanes (chalk marks when you just rehearse) then left the airdrome and got sufficiently far away before the bombs went off.

"Of course," says Captain Smith laconically, as the descendant of a good Indian fighter would, "this was not always possible and many times, sentries had to be killed in hand-to-hand fighting by a sudden attack with a knife. . . ." Although the Germans made every effort to protect their planes against such attacks, approximately 300 enemy planes were destroyed by this guerilla unit in a single 12-month span.

Captain Smith, writing in the early days of the war, says, "in case of the invasion of Europe," the benefits derived from guerillas would be "of the greatest assistance to an army opening a bridgehead."

Well, not only the land guerillas but also the men who come up out of the sea by night are of "greatest assistance" whether you call them by the romantic name of "commandos" or the more prosaic American designation of "scouts and raiders." The French have their land guerillas who are already playing a vital part in the battle of Germany. The part our scouts and raiders have in the same epic event will some day be sung in appropriate measures.

But let's get back to our personal history. The day after the bloodless "raid" which I described to you, a captain from the raided airbase was visiting at "raider" headquarters.

Said the captain, after his third coca cola: "About your raiders running hog wild over our joint last night. We caught them all—four of them. They walked right into the sentry's arms—and darn near got drilled."

The raider officer who lived his part and looked it—he was still unshaven, got up and picked up a rifle, shining like a schoolboy's morning face, that was standing in the corner.

The Colonel Errs

"Take this back to your colonel," he said, "and have him check its number. He knows it stands in the rack right outside his door and if you have an inspection worth a nickel, it's been missing about nine hours."

The captain cocked an eye.

"Yep," said the raider, "I plucked it from the bush and would have had the name plate off the skipper's door too if I hadn't heard a step in the hall. Want to see a sketch of your layout?" He tossed a sodden notebook on the table.

Yes, it was just "play." But the young officer who had been pushing the pigskin around for one of our storied gridirons only two years ago had played at more serious games in Africa before he came back to be an instructor—he had landed on more than one enemy beach, wiggled past sentries, human and canine, just as he had when he worked his way up to the commandant's door, stole the rifle, inched his way back to a clump of bushes, dug out his deflated rubber raft, blew it up and paddled back to safety.

Duck soup for him. He'd done it all before in earnest — once when there had been a quick hash of a knife and some blood—and a sentry's last groan, stifled by a hand that had to wipe some enemy blood from it. And for that, he wears a little ribbon on his dress tunic which you can't buy by the yard.

Women and the War

What is going to happen to the millions of women who are now filling jobs in war industries when (1) those industries are discontinued or converted to peace-time operations, (2) millions of men come home from the war looking for jobs?

A group of women who meet in Washington frequently, have been hard at work for months on plans to deal with such an emergency. They are the women's advisory committee of the War Manpower commission, headed by Miss Margaret A. Hickey, and they have just made some specific recommendations to War Manpower Chief McNutt.

The women's committee says that:

Employers should give their women workers notice of cessation of work as far ahead as possible;

Women to be laid off first should be those on the split-shift, including mothers of children for whom part-time working arrangements have been made;

Women who wish to resign from their jobs voluntarily should be asked to do so as soon as possible;

Women who have to be dismissed because of the curtailment of work should be given consideration as to skill, seniority and dismissal pay, based on length of service;

Plans should be made for advising women who are dismissed about such things as transferring to other jobs, retraining for other jobs and their social security rights.

What action the manpower commission will take along these lines remains to be seen. But at least the women have spoken up.

U.S. Army Based in England Is Strict About Saluting

Proper Uniform Also Very Important; These Two Things Amuse British

By Ernie Pyle

LONDON.—I can't seem to make up my mind about London this trip.

Some say that they can see in people's conduct the strain of waiting on the invasion—that tempers are short and nerves taut. Yet the English seem to me just as imperturbable as ever.

Some say the English have been at war so long they've forgotten about peacetime life and are resigned like sheep to the war dragging on and on. But I don't sense any such resignation.

It is certainly true that Britain has adjusted herself to wartime life, but that doesn't mean blind, perpetual acceptance. People have learned to get along. American aid, and years of learning how to do, have eased the meager war life of the early days. There is more food now, and it is better than it used to be. There are more people on the streets, more shopping, more Sunday strollers in the parks.

I had supposed the people would look shabbier than a year and a half ago, but to me they look neater. And the physical city itself seems less dreary than in the fall of 1942.

As for short tempers, I haven't seen any. Maybe it's just because I have been accustomed to the screaming outbursts at each other of the emotional Italians. But from what I've seen so far the English are as kind and polite to each other as they always were.

All in all, my first impression is that England is better, all around, than it was a year and a half ago. Of course spring may have something to do with it.

Every day the London papers quote all the German rumors on invasion. They print the predictions of the German radio, and pieces from neutral countries saying the invasion will have to occur between 4:39 a. m. today and 4:41 a. m. tomorrow, or else be put off for a month. They print pictures of German fortifications, and tell of the sudden regrouping and rushing around of German troops. They conjecture on the thunderous explosions heard daily on the French side of the Channel.

Since the only invasion news we have is what the Germans predict, this echo from Germany has the effect, upon me at least, of a war of nerves.

London is crawling with Americans, both army and civilian. All headquarters cities are alike in their overcrowding, their exaggerated discipline, and what appears to be military overstaffing.

Some say London is as bad as Washington. Some say it is worse. I do know that the section where American offices are most highly concentrated is a funny sight at lunchtime or in late afternoon. American uniforms pour out of the buildings in floods. On some streets an Englishman stands out as incongruously as he would in North Platte, Neb. Desk officers and fliers and WACs and nurses abound.

Two things that amuse the British are the "pink" trousers our officers wear and our perpetual saluting.

The American army is very strict about saluting here. Everybody has to salute. Second lieutenants salute other second lieutenants. Arms flail up and down by the thousands as though everybody was crazy. People jab each other in the eyes saluting.

On one short street much traveled by Americans they have had to make sidewalk traffic one-way, presumably to prevent saluting casualties.

A friend of mine, a captain recently arrived from Africa, was stopped the other day by another captain just over from America who bawled the living daylights out of him for not returning his salute. My captain friend said he couldn't because his right arm had become muscle-bound from waving it too much.

They're strict about dress here too. You have to wear your dress blouse and either pinks or dark-green dress trousers. Everybody looks just so-so and exactly like everybody else.

I thought I looked very pretty when I got here, for all my clothes were clean for the first time in months. But I hadn't reckoned with the headquarters atmosphere. I have never been stared at so much in my life as during my first three days here.

For I had on a British battle jacket, O. D. pants and infantry boots. They had never seen anybody dressed like that before. Nobody knew what this strange apparition was, but they all played safe and saluted it anyhow—and then turned and stared belligerently at it. I think sheer awe is all that kept the M.P.'s from picking me up.

Finally, after three days, I dug up a trunk I had left here a year and a half ago and got out my old brown civilian suit and gray hat, and now I'm all right. People just think I'm a bedraggled bank clerk, and it's much better.

The other day I took a trip up to mid-England to see a man from Albuquerque. He is in fact the man who built our little white house out there on the mesa, and who subsequently became one of our best friends.

His name is Arthur McCollum. He was a lieutenant in the last war and he is a captain in this one. He spent 20 years regretting that he never got overseas the other time, and he is very happy that he made it this time. He is attached to a big general hospital in the country.

In January Captain McCollum had a reunion with his son, Lieut. Ross McCollum. Ross was chief pilot of a flying fortress. Father and son had two wonderful weekends together. And then on his second mission over Germany Ross didn't come back. Nothing has been heard from him since. That was nearly four months ago.

Captain Mac and Ross were real companions — they played together and dreamed and planned together. After the war they were going to fish a lot and then start an airplane sales agency together.

Captain Mac says he kind of went to the bottom of the barrel over Ross. For two months he was so low he felt he couldn't take it. And then he said to himself, "Look here, you damn fool. You can't do this. Get yourself together." And having given himself that abrupt command, he carried it out. And today he is all right.

I found him the same kind of life-loving, gay friend I had known in Albuquerque. We rode bicycles around the countryside, celebrated here and there, made fools of ourselves and had a wonderful time.

Captain Mac talked a lot about Ross, and felt better for the talking, and he didn't do any crying on my shoulder. He feels firmly that Ross will come back, but he knows now that if he never does he can take it.

Even though he is an intimate friend of mine, I consider him one of the finest examples I know of what people can and must do when the tragedy of war falls fully upon them.

I had a quick V-letter the other day from the Mediterranean. It was from one of the "frozen" boys in Casablanca that I wrote about — the American-bound soldiers who had hit a dead-end street and had been hung up in Casa for six weeks when I ran into them.

Well, they got a decision on their fate. But it was the wrong one. Their schooling program was called off, their transfer home was cancelled, and they were ordered back to their original outfits. The letter says:

"It was a great dream while it lasted, but it's over now. We have been riding the Forty-and-Eights and hitting the replacement depots —and you know what that means.

"The only thing that really hurts is that we didn't catch the many boats we might have caught if we had seen 'somebody' sooner. But enough of this crying in your Scotch, Ernie. We will see you again some day. And again, thanks a million from all of us."

It was a cruel and disappointing thing, but that is the way real soldiers take it. The army is so big that things like that are bound to happen. But they shouldn't happen too often.

Such a thing had happened in one of those boys four times in two years. Even the best soldier can't have too much discouragement and disillusionment heaped upon him.

Yarns From Old London Town . . .

The American contingent in London has many new terms since I left here in 1942. The newest and most frequently heard is "SHAEF." This is the initials of Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary force. It is SHAEF that is planning and will direct the invasion. General Eisenhower is head man of SHAEF. I mention it to show how initials grow over here.

One story has to do with Lieut. Gen. Carl Spaatz, head of the American army air forces here. One night he was standing on a balcony, watching a German raid on London. Their aim was very bad that night and they were dropping bombs miles from any target. General Spaatz was furious. He shook his head and blurted, "The damn fools. They're setting bombing back 20 years."

Court of Honor to Include Six Troops And Scoutmasters

Scoutmasters and Boy Scouts of the North Shore district, of which Ocean Beach is a part, will hold a "Court of Honor" Friday evening, June 2, at 8 o'clock in the George Dewey school near the Marine base. At least six Boy Scout troops will take part, one of which will be troop No. 28 of Ocean Beach. The other troops scheduled on the program are No. 9 of Azure Vista housing project, No. 24 of the Point Loma community church, No. 13 and No. 145 of the Frontier housing project community and troop No. 59, location not announced.
Henry Batchelder, the area council advancement chairman, will be master of ceremonies. Leroy Wright of Point Loma will present war bond selling certificates and Maj. I. D. Offer of La Jolla will present the North Shore district banner. The scout address will be delivered by Chaplain Lester E. Bond.
Awards to be presented will include eagle, life, star, first and second class, and merit badge certificates will be given to the scoutmasters having earned them.

City Council Kills Little O.P.A. Ordinance

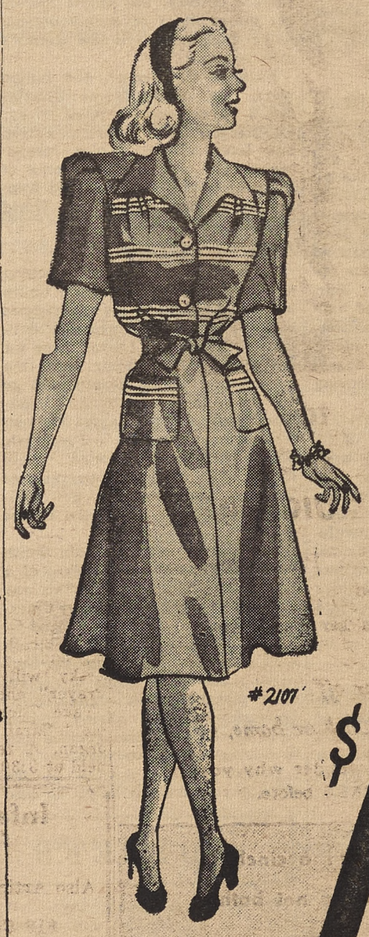

The San Diego city council by a 4-3 vote Tuesday killed the proposed little OPA ordinance, which would have placed this city in the position of helping enforce OPA rules. Voting against the ordinance were Councilmen Fred Simpson, Walter Austin, Ernest Boud and Paul Hartley. Voting in favor of drafting an ordinance for further consideration were Mayor Knox, and Councilmen Dail and De Graff Austin.
The action came after more than two hours of debate pro and con on the measure. Among those who helped defeat the ordinance were Ralph O. Coggeshal, civic leader, and past president of the Council of Chambers of Commerce and Civic clubs, who said: "This law will only mean more snoopers, more people to boss you. Already we are so tied with red tape that there is no joy in life. We must stop some of this expense, leave it to the OPA to enforce its own regulations." Atty. Bob Hamilton, John Cotton of the Apartment House Owners Assn. and others opposed the law. Proponents including labor officials, Linda Vista Civic assn. executives, and many others.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The Golden Text in the Sunday Lesson-Sermon in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, is from Romans: "I would have you wise unto that which is good, and simple concerning evil. And the God of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly." "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" is the subject.

"I am the light of the world," asserts Jesus in John's Gospel, and he continues, "he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." The Pharisees say unto him, "Thou bearest record of thyself; thy record is not true." Jesus answers, "Though I bear record of myself, yet my record is true: for I know whence I came, and whither I go: . . . I speak that which I have seen with my Father: and ye do that which ye have seen with your father. . . . Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do."

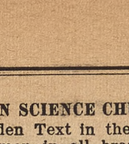

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures:" "Jesus never intimated that God made a devil, but he did say, 'Ye are of your father, the devil.' All these sayings were to show that mind in matter is the author of itself, and is simply a falsity and illusion."

Reversing Restrictions

WARTIME measures and restrictions have brought into prominence and common usage many words and phrases formerly not in general use. For instance, we have read and heard so much about "rationing" and "priorities" that these terms are now a part of the average person's daily vocabulary. The income tax and the enactment of a current payment plan of paying the tax have made "pay-as-you-go," "withholding," "exemption," and other related terms familiar to all of us.

The truly patriotic citizen, law-abiding and co-operative, is meticulous in his desire to obey to the letter the laws of his country. But, while carefully fulfilling his material obligations, he can be mindful of, and grateful for, the fact that although many commodities have been rationed, this applies only to material things, and not to the real and enduring. Good cannot be rationed; nor can kindness, gratitude, love, truth, joy, mercy, courage, or any other spiritual quality. What a travesty it would be if one were to think: "I have used such-and-such an amount of kindness and joy today. Now I must cut down or I shall use too much." But there are no shortages or scarcities in the realm of Spirit, the kingdom of God. The more we express the qualities of God, the more we have, in fulfillment of God's law of abundance and His infinitude. . .

The need for more alertness in wholeheartedly claiming good as our heritage, and vigorously denying error, should take priority in our thinking. There is no priority on honesty, sincerity, loyalty, or obedience, and the exercise of these qualities will close the door to evil and admit only good.

The enlightened thinker rejoices in the fact that the only real income is the incoming of spiritual ideas to his consciousness. There is no burden, hardship, or tax attached to such a spiritual "in-come," but instead a joyous receptivity to these right ideas. We can lift our business and everything pertaining to it above the commonplace by constantly knowing and showing that we are about our "Father's business." Our real business is expressing God, good. . . .

We can rejoice that God's law of abundance is ever operative, that obedience to this beneficent law sustains and supplies us with all that is needed, and annuls the belief of limitation and restriction. What assurance is conveyed by these comforting words from "Miscellaneous Writings" by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 307): "God gives you His spiritual ideas, and in turn, they give you daily supplies. Never ask for tomorrow: it is enough that divine Love is an ever-present help; and if you wait, never doubting, you will have all you need every moment. What a glorious inheritance is given to us through the understanding of omnipresent Love!" —The Christian Science Monitor.

QUEENS DIE PROUDLY

by W. L. White

©. WHITE W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed while fleeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other Forts, was demolished on the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of the squadron flies to Java, where they go on many missions over the Philippines and the Java sea. The boys in Java hear what happened to the Marblehead and the Houston and morale sags. Bud Sprague, who got his commission in the morning, dies that afternoon. The Japs take Bali field, and all Java is caving in. Sergt. Warrenfeltz volunteers for a very dangerous mission.

CHAPTER XVIII

"I had only four bombs—we hadn't had time to load more before the air-raid alarm blew and we'd had to clear off the field—so I sighted on the last ship and let go all four in a stick.

"If you're dropping instantaneous fuse bombs, of course you see the splash of deck planking and debris the instant it hits, but it doesn't do much damage—all on the surface. But these were delayed-action fuses. From that altitude there isn't much to see when they first crack the deck. There's a little pause, and then there's the sweetest geyser of deck splinters, and form, and machinery, and Japanese infantry corporals you'd ever hope to gaze down at. As I think I said, we blew her stern off. I kept peeking back until the debris subsided, and I could see solid blue water between the two halves of the ship.

"We got back to Madiun Field just in time to take off in the face of three strafing Zeros, our side gunner—a National Guard boy we'd picked up in Java; the rest of his outfit all stayed and got captured—knocking one of them down almost before we got our wheels up. When the other two went away we relanded, and found a bomb somewhere had knocked our electricity out. We had to refuel by hand, using flashlights. Also we were using them trying to repair our brakes when all of a sudden came a terrific Bang! It shook the ship so badly it knocked one guy off the wing, and he fell face-down on the field. Of course we were sure that the Japs, seeing our flashlights, had dropped a bomb. But no. Oh, no!

"It was just the methodical Dutch, carefully scorching the earth by blowing up our ammunition dump, which by some miracle we weren't near at the time.

"It seemed the order had just come through to evacuate, because the Japs were coming, and what with the language difficulty, this was their way of announcing it. The funny thing was, for weeks they'd had a gang of men working to improve that field and repair the runways. These guys kept right on sweating away up until the minute the order to evacuate came through—then they went ahead sweating just as hard to blow up what they'd just been fixing.

"We were jittery — been going through a lot of strafing—but finally got our plane refueled, and loaded twenty-four men aboard. We still had no brakes on the right wheel, but we all hoped together in unison that we'd clear the runway. We did.

"It was two o'clock in the morning. As we climbed for altitude we could see refineries flaming all over the island—fires and explosions—and as we circled the field in the dark for the last time, the Dutch down below us threw a switch and blew up that beautiful new concrete hangar. It had huge arches like a bridge span, control tower, and everything —it all came rolling up at us in a parting salute.

"Now we were headed for Australia, buzzing along at about 10,000 feet."

"Getting into Broome, Australia, we began to worry about that busted brake, and the momentum we would have when we hit the field with all these men aboard. We could lighten ship by having the guys bail out, but the trouble was we had only nine chutes. But when the pilot called the airport, they reported they had one runway which ran uphill and was soft at the far end—perfect for us, so we made a beautiful landing."

"I was still back in Surabaya," said the pilot, Frank Kurtz, "because I had a couple of jobs to do. The day we got Warrenfeltz off in the Corregidor relief ship, the Colonel had told me he was leaving Malang for Jokyakarta—the town we called Jockstrap—and that I'd better join him there and he'd send me out to Australia. All the other boys of the 19th were going that day.

"But I asked him if I couldn't stay over just a little longer. I was thinking of the fighter pilots. No one was looking after them; they had absolutely no liaison. When a place is cracking up, everybody tends to think of themselves. Why bother about the fighters, They got in, didn't they? Well, let them get out again. The trouble was the fighters had got in with belly tanks, hopping via Timor and Bali, which were now held by the Japs.

"The Colonel said I was absolutely right—maybe I could help them. 'You're under your own orders,' he said. 'I leave it to your discretion as to how and when you come out. Best of luck.'

"It wasn't until I'd hung up that I realized that when the 19th had left Java, there wouldn't be any way for me to get out. The hotel by now was emptying fast of foreign uniforms—I'd bade the first echelon of our Navy goodby. Poor old Java was being left to sink by herself, but since the newspapers were still about four days behind the actual news, the people didn't realize it yet. Things were moving fast.

"That day we heard a big Jap force was closing in off the north coast, headed for the Java beaches. We got reports from scout planes, even from submarines, but we didn't know just how big it was. Because hanging over it was a Jap fighter screen so thick that our recco planes didn't dare fly through to see.

"We got a few reports from a tiny island which lies out in the Java Sea north of Surabaya, but ominously its radio went dead. We realized the Japs had put a landing force ashore there.

"That night out went the tiny Dutch Navy—it was all they had left—which pounded them under cover of darkness and then pulled away.

There's a little pause, and then there's the sweetest geyser of deck splinters.

It did some good, because in the morning we found the Jap advance guard, which had been headed right for Java's beaches, now pulled back a little, under that bomber-and-fighter screen, waiting for the main force to come on up.

"Colonel Eubank was now in Jockstrap, and by telephone I put a problem up to him. The position of our fighter pilots in Java was hopeless now—any minute their field would be hit by Jap bombers and put out of operation. I wanted them to turn their P-40's over to the Dutch fighter pilots (who had nothing left now but three Hurricanes which had been rescued from Singapore) and come on out to Australia with us where we could continue the war.

"Further air defense in Java was hopeless. We had broken camp at Malang—Jap bombers were swarming over the island.

"But Van Oeyen, the Dutch commander, wouldn't listen. He was a stout old infantry officer, and he had given orders to fight to the last.

"We had to plead our viewpoint with Van Oeyen. Yet it would be hard to explain to men who were defending their homes and families in this beautiful island, whose lives, when it fell, would be over.

"That night, fifty miles off Surabaya, the naval battle was resumed. The main Japanese invasion force, ringed by submarines, was headed for our beaches. At midnight the United Nations Navy moved in to throw their little all into the balance. This final night the Dutch struck no glancing blow. It was now or never. They moved in and fought them toe to toe, the Australians at their side. It was pitiful, of course, and hopeless, as all of them knew. But the gallant Dutch preferred to die fighting out in the night rather than go skulking home to wait for the Rising Sun tanks to come rattling down their streets.

"Side by side, the Dutch and the Australians plunged through that outer ring of Jap submarines. The American forces took up the last defensive position, skirting the Jap back edge, firing on the run. It was our duty not to dissipate ourselves in lost causes, but to do what damage we could, and conserve our strength to strike again.

"Java died that night in the gunfire which came rolling in over the water. It took until dawn for the Jap battle fleet to crunch to bits the Dutch and Australian navies.

"But early the morning before I had put in a telephone call to America. It was to Margo, but it was government business and the Dutch, when they understood what it was about, said they would pay the charges themselves. They said the connection might not be made until midnight. I privately wondered if it would go through at all. Java was collapsing fast all around us.

"But I said I'd take it whenever it came, knowing I'd get no sleep that night—maybe little sleep for many nights. So at midnight I started for the telephone office. Just as I was leaving the hotel I ran into Commander Peterson of the Navy's Patrol Wing 10. By now he was almost the sole survivor. He seemed surprised to see me, told me he was just leaving for his plane—the last of the Navy was leaving Java. He asked how I expected to get out. I said I didn't know. 'Come with me now,' he said, 'and I'll take you out to Australia.' I couldn't. There was that telephone call. And also I mustn't leave those American fighters to be swallowed up in the collapse tomorrow. So I thanked him; we said goodby.

"Walking to the telephone building I could hear a dull rumble in the hot midnight air coming from far over the water. The few people in the blacked-out streets assumed it was distant thunder. I knew it was the little Dutch Navy in its final agony out there in the dark.

"Then I waited in that dim-lit mosquito-filled telephone building for that call. Sitting on a bench, with the help of a flashlight I made my notes for the call. Then I paced the floor. Each time the window opened, letting out a little light, I was sure the half-caste girl was telling me the call had been completed. I had other pressing business, but none more pressing than this. I thought of the eager face of the boy just before he went out into what looked like almost certain death."

"From Florida," said Margo, "I could hear the telephone operators working, setting up that line all around the world, from here where it was noon to midnight in the tropics. And finally Frank's own voice. 'Have you got paper and pencil?' he asked. 'Now take down this name: Mrs. W. H. Warrenfeltz, of Hagerstown, Maryland. Her son Bud is going on a mission and he wants her to know there probably will be some money deposited to her account in the Hagerstown bank from New York. Tell her Bud sends his love to Billy, Jane, and all, and of course to her. He wants her to use half the money to buy her home, and the rest is for her to live on, and he wants her to be happy, however it comes out.'"

"Then I told Margo the boy was going on a most dangerous mission. We didn't know how dangerous until after he left, for his course took him right across the path of the main Japanese fleet. And now," Frank said bitterly, "this little story has a happy ending, so far as the War Department's auditors are concerned. Because the five thousand dollars which Bud Warrenfeltz thought his mother was going to get, when he went out to face the Japanese fleet, was never paid. It never cleared through the New York banks before Java fell. I suppose those New York bankers were more prudent than Bud, and took no chances on Java paper. So Bud's mother didn't get any money, and even Bud himself never got through to Manila. Let's hope he's a Jap prisoner."

"After I'd written down the message to Mrs. Warrenfeltz, it seemed that Frank just wanted to visit," said Margo. "Of course it was wonderful to talk to him, because for some reason there didn't seem to be any censors clicking in on the line."

"The censors had all caught the boat," explained Frank. "In a few hours the Japs would have Java, so it didn't much matter what they knew."

"But after we talked about fifteen minutes I began to worry," said Margo. "Living on an Air Corps salary, you have to think of money. As we talked I couldn't help thinking it was six dollars and a half for every minute, and I said we'd better hang up. Then he explained we could talk all we liked, because it was a government call."

"I didn't tell her what government it was on," said Frank. "She didn't know that the Japanese were taking over tomorrow, and they would get the bill."

"After that it was wonderful," said Margo. "Frank was coming through as clearly as if he were in a pay station downtown. He told me there would be no more calls for a while, and from that I guessed that maybe in a week or so the Air Corps would be retiring to Australia. I didn't dream that the Japanese were already just off the beach, that Frank didn't know how he could get out.

"He talked a lot about a letter he'd written me months ago from the Philippines, a few days after the first Japanese attack, when he thought there was no chance of his getting out alive—explaining that while he'd meant every word of it, yet he'd been tired when he wrote it, so I was not to take it too seriously."

Children's Parties

Do the children want to give a party? Now that schools are letting out and the youngsters find themselves with time on their hands, a celebration of their own may be just the thing to fill in their odd moments.

Even if the children are younger, they can get a lot of satisfaction maneuvering their own party. Let them do it for it helps them develop imagination, encourages thinking for themselves and teaches them sociability while they are still young.

Make it as easy as possible for them; in other words, keep them free of worries about table cloth, plates and napkins. Furnish paper ones if the occasion warrants. Older children, of course, can take care of even the better dishes.

Mother can take care of the main food and supervise the serving if necessary. Sandwiches, cooling drinks, appetite-tempting desserts are popular with the younger set.

Hot Ham Sandwiches.
(Serves 6)

12 slices brown bread
6 slices ham
Prepared mustard
6 slices American or Swiss cheese
1 egg
⅔ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons melted butter

Spread thin slices of the bread with ham, then with a layer of mustard. Cover with slice of cheese. Top with another slice of bread. Beat egg, add salt, pepper and milk. Dip sandwiches quickly in this mixture, then fry in butter until delicately browned.

An easily prepared casserole like this one will take care of the heartiest appetites:

Sausages and Spaghetti.
(Serves 6)

8 link sausages
1 small onion, sliced
1 green pepper, chopped
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons flour
2½ cups tomatoes
1½ cups spaghetti, cooked

Cut sausages into 1-inch lengths; fry until golden brown. Add onion and green pepper; brown lightly. Add seasonings and flour; blend. Add tomatoes and spaghetti. Bake in a greased baking dish in a moderate (350-degree) oven 30 minutes.

Toastwiches.
(Serves 4)

½ pound ground beef
⅓ cup milk
1 tablespoon minced onion
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
4 slices bread

Toast slices of bread on one side. Mix meat with milk, onion, salt and pepper. Spread on bread. Dot with fat and broil about 7 minutes.

Molded salads make the table pretty and are a big hit with youngsters:

Lynn Says

Spring Tonic: Cool foods should be served cool. Chill plates for salad and other cool foods before dishing them out. In making salads, chill not only the bowl or plates, but all ingredients and utensils required in the assembling of the salad.

The three "Cs" in salad-making are that ingredients should be clean, cool and crisp.

When buying lettuce, make sure it's crisp, tender and free from decay.

In tossed salads, mix ingredients so that each is coated with dressing before serving. In salting the salad, salt each layer of vegetables so that you get an even distribution of seasoning.

Grapefruit-Carrot Mold.
(Serves 8 to 12)

2 to 3 grapefruits
2 tablespoons plain gelatin
½ cup cold water
2½ cups boiling water and grapefruit juice
½ cup honey
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup lemon juice
1 cup grated raw carrot

Pare grapefruit, removing outer membrane. Slip out sections saving juice; add water to make 2½ cups. Heat to boiling point. Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Dissolve in hot juice and water. Add remainder of ingredients. Cool. When mixture begins to stiffen add grapefruit sections and grated carrot. Chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce.

Cream Cole Slaw.
(Serves 6)

½ medium-sized head of cabbage
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons sugar

Wash cabbage thoroughly. Drain. Shred fine. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over cabbage. Sprinkle with paprika.

Now, for desserts. A fresh cherry cobbler is good, or the hot fudge pudding is appetizing and economical:

Fresh Cherry Cobbler.
(Serves 6)

3 cups pitted cherries
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch in
2 tablespoons cold water
½ tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon cinnamon
Rich shortcake dough

Heat cherries with sugar and water. Blend cornstarch in water and add to cherry mixture. Cook 3 minutes. Place on bottom of baking dish and dot with cinnamon and butter. Drop biscuit dough by spoonfuls on top and bake in a hot (400-degree) oven for 30 minutes. Serve hot, cutting in squares, inverting on dessert plates. Dip fruit and sauce on top.

Hot Fudge Pudding.
(Serves 6)

1 cup sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cocoa
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening, melted
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup brown sugar
4 tablespoons cocoa

Sift dry ingredients together, stir in milk and shortening, and mix until smooth. Add nuts. Spread in pan. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cocoa, mixed. Pour over this 1¾ cups hot water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 40 to 45 minutes. Invert squares on plates, dip sauce from pan over each.

Cranberry Punch A La Mode.
(Serves 20)

2 quarts cranberry juice
1 cup light corn syrup
¾ cup sugar
1 quart apple juice
1½ cups orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
2 cups ice water
2 quarts vanilla ice cream

Heat cranberry juice, stir in corn syrup and sugar. Chill thoroughly. Add chilled apple juice, orange and lemon juice and ice water. Pour into punch bowl and drop scoops of vanilla into punch.

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

EARLY American wall pockets cut out of light weight pine or scraps of half-inch material may have many modern uses. In the kitchen they are just the thing for ration books and a pad for the grocery list. Just inside the front door one will lend a decorative note and make a convenient place for driving gloves and keys.

Originally these pockets were made in a great variety of designs and were used for letter boxes. They are still useful for this purpose or for a leave-a-note pad and pencil. If you enjoy working with wood you may want to cut these pockets out by hand as shown here. But if you have a jig saw available it is much faster.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared patterns in actual size for this pocket and two others in typical Early American designs. The patterns are on one large sheet with complete directions for making and finishing. Request Pattern 261 and enclose 15 cents. Address:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Milk, or latex, flows from the rubber tree best in early morning. Therefore, rubber tappers start their day's work long before dawn.

An overload which might reduce the life of a crude rubber tire only 25 per cent or even be carried through until the tread was worn smooth, may reduce the life of a synthetic rubber tire 50 per cent or more and result in a blowout while there is still wear in the tread.

Rubber belting, which now plays such an important part in mining and industrial operations, was first manufactured in this country in 1836.

Literature Group Enjoys Book Talks At Burkett Home

The "Literature" group of the Ocean Beach Woman's club, of which Mrs. Virginia Long is chairman, enjoyed a program featured by book reviews at the regular meeting held Monday evening in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lyle Burkett, 1195 Santa Barbara st. About 18 guests were present, a number of whom gave short talks on different new books, current events and other items of interest. Among the books discussed were: "Burma Surgeon", "Journey In The Dark" and "Meeting At Teheran," the last named stressing the importance of friendly relations with Russia. News of the last Federation meeting was also reported upon and an interesting letter from Mrs. Davis's sister who has recently left Japan, was read.

The Burkett home which boasts many imported Chinese furnishings was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Tea was served in the huge dining room, with Mrs. E. T. Hammond, wife of Lt. Cmdr. Hammond pouring.

GRANDMOTHER'S BOND WITH THE FUTURE -WAR BONDS

EMBLEM OF THE GRANDMOTHERS LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, D. C.: "Grandmother's Bond with the Future—War Bonds" is the slogan of the Treasury's new campaign urging grandparents to buy Bonds and stamps for their grandchildren. The official emblem is the old-fashioned sampler reproduced above.

The Grandmothers League was founded by Mrs. George C. Marshall, wife of the Army Chief-of-Staff, who bought Bonds from Secretary Morgenthau for her three grandchildren. Mrs. Marshall suggests that grandparents insure their grandchildren's future by buying Bonds or starting stamp albums for them.
